

Bahrom International Program

Provides international students a unique opportunity to achieve a better understanding about the various aspects of Korean culture. Participants will learn about the Korean life style, historical ad religious background, the economic struggles, political tension with North Korea, city streets, art, and even the Korean language. All of this is made possible by experiencing Korean life through this four-week intensive program in English. All participants will be matched with a Korean partner, exchange students of SWU, with whom they will participate together in all programs. Through this close interchange, and by mixing with a student group half-international and half-Korean, participants will experience a constant interaction of cultures.

The exchange program will introduce Korean culture not only through lectures and discussion sessions but also by hands-on cultural experiences during which they will dress like traditional Koreans, learn Korean manners, make their own Korean-style pottery, play traditional instruments and make Korean food. Excursions to such sites as Korea's ancient capital during the Silla Dynasty and the present border with North Korea will be complemented by lectures explaining their historical significance.

Features of the program

Students will be introduced to various topics ranging from Korean contemporary issues, Korea's past history and religion, and many forms of tradition that have been carried on even until the 21st century. Another main focus will be on the Korean War, in conjunction with issues about recent political and economical developments of Korea.
